Some particles, such as dust, dirt, soot, or smoke, are large or dark enough to be seen with the naked eye. Both the satellite fire detections and the smoke plume data generated by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Hazard Mapping System (HMS) systems which notes that "The information on fire position should be used as general guidance and for strategic planning. The colors show the US. When the Concentration tab is selected the values shown are hourly PM2.5 concentration values. Reset map zoom and position Could not determine your location. However, the data is by nature incomplete and duplicates may exist. You also can select different map layers, using the layer icon in the upper righthand corner of the map, to see fire locations and smoke plumes, and to select an aerial or terrain map view. Further transmission lags, particularly with the GOES satellite transmissions processed by the WRCC can sometimes take several hours. (Pacf_atm)
